

To my Nib Nib

December 28, 2023 (A life with you, is all I want)

It's been a really long time since I've done something like this. Last time was during the summer, and since then, I haven't been able to bring myself to write anything like this to you... but I feel that I've overcome that trauma now, and I have you to thank for that. Your endless love these past few months, the sweetest memories we've made together, they've helped me overcome my trauma, and have made me fall insanely in love with you all over again.

We've had a lot of rough patches recently, and it's been draining, and tiring, but baby, you're also the one who energised me every day.

You know, one thing I ask everyone I meet and want to get to know is "what is the thing that makes you tick? What makes you wake up in the morning with a smile?" My answer to that is very simple. A.) Getting the opportunity to learn something new today, and B.) more importantly, getting to see the love of my life and fall in love with her all over again, with every passing minute. Getting to see her funny little idiosyncrasies, laughs, pouty faces, raspberries, eating habits 😊😊

That is what truly gets me up in the morning, always with a smile.

Meri jaan, my lovebug, my nib nib, I want you to know that even though I have absolutely sucked at showing it for a while, you truly, truly are everything to me. You're it for me. Every time I'm just sitting, your face flashes into my mind, always, and I rush back and scroll through the giant folder I have with all of your pictures in it. I am madly in love with you baby

I want my life to be with you, and only you. I fantasise about you, dream about you. Dream about our life, our love, our future. All I want out of life is a life with you in it. I guess what I am trying to say, in 1000+ words is:

My dearest nib nib, will you marry me?