

“Love is the one thing that transcends the dimensions of time and space”

- Anne Hathaway, Interstellar

March 16, 2023 (Making memories together, forever⁶)

As we bring Spring break to a close, a memory popped in my brain. It was from spring break last year. It was rainy, cold, and quiet. Everyone had either gone home or elsewhere with their loved ones. But I had no one to go to, no one to be with. I still remember last year... how excited I was when the break ended and classes resumed because it meant I would be able to keep myself busy again.

However, a year later, I find myself in the opposite situation. It's the kind of situation where I just want time to freeze, so that this spring break never ends. This past week has been the most beautiful, wholesome and enjoyable time, and there's only one reason behind that.

You. 💜💜

As the spring break comes to a close, I look back at this past week and smile. Every day, every night, every moment was truly magical, fun, and beautiful. From kissing you good night every night to waking up next to you every day, from getting Dunkin breakfast to the various dinner dates, not a moment went by where I was bored or tired. Being with you throughout reenergized me even when I was feeling low.

I'd just like to say in the end that as I look back at this past week, I am reminded why I fell deeply in love with you, and the thought of having a future with you had been reinforced and strengthened even more. I desperately wait for the day where it won't be just a week together, but forever together. I know it's not going to be easy, but as I told you this week (while i was in tears), I have full faith that we can do it, and I hope that you do too and always will. 💜💜

I love you so much baby. And I know that these feelings for you, they're not going to dwindle. They're only gonna grow stronger and stronger. And I hope with all my heart, that they will for you too.

To many more memories together. 💜💜💜

Love,

Aalyan Arif Mahmood

⁶ This is the song that I wanted to listen to with you. It is one that I have been listening a lot to recently and every time I do listen to it, you are all I think about. I hope that you like it. 💜💜💜